Vulcan Turkey Ends Up With Local Soldiers in England

It was a real co-incidence that a turkey donated by a Vulcan man in the recent Canadian Legion drive to send turkeys to the Canadian troops overseas would eventually find its way to the mess hall of a unit in which are several Vulcan men, but it actually did happen.

Some time ago the Canadian Legion campaigned for turkeys to send overseas to the Canadian troops. The local response was very good and to each turkey donated the Legion officials attached a tag bearing the stamp of the Vulcan Branch Canadian Legion and the donor's name. A turkey, donated by Herman Spanke and bearing his name on the card, was included in the local shipment and now the card is back in Vulcan with the information that the turkey was one of those received by the 8th Field Ambulance, in which unit several men are serving. A letter received by Rev. Canon Winter from Russell Caruthers, a member of the unit, revealed the co-incidence. Pte. Caruthers mentioned in his letter that:

"The 8th Field had a big turkey dinner about two weeks ago and one of the boys on kitchen fatigue that day found the enclosed tag attached to one turkey's leg. Thought you might like to show the boys from the Legion that we even get turkey from the home town, and in very good shape, too."

Major Gainer who has just left for a visit to Winnipeg, announces that the District Recruiting Office in Calgary will remain open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily except Saturday and men measuring up to the required medical standards can be posted immediately. Friends may be posted to the same unit.

Conscription Soon?

THERE are signs that conscription of manpower may not be far away. This would be conscription for fighting overseas in any part of the world where British interests must be protected.

A stage seems to come in the progress of wars, when voluntary enlistment is inadequate in the opinion of many people, to meet requirements. In an effort to secure required enlistment, measures may be taken which in their methods are anything but voluntary. At present a number of organizations are pressing for compulsory enlistment, according to age classification, as a fairer system.

In some respects there is a mechanical impersonality about a conscription plan which appeals to those who are eligible, no less than to those who are quite unlikely ever to be called on to take any risk. The matter of decision is taken out of the hands of many a young man who does not see his way clearly as to what he should do, or where he is most needed.

The war developments of the past few weeks have pressed home the needs of Britain and the strength required in manpower and machines, to combat the apparently inexhaustible armies of the enemy. But one thing continues of paramount importance. There must be no lack of mechanized equipment to outfit the men who are sent in to action. If men's lives are to be risked, there must be no slackening nor striking in factories on questions of profits or service or hours. When a man offers his life or when his life is conscripted, no higher service can be given. The scale of pay of the common soldier in comparison with other industry or with administration, still continues, and is likely to continue, as the biggest argument against excess profits, or high salaries at home.

There is no equality of service in war, but there can be some equalization of income. Taxes are taking a heavy toll of incomes of Canada's wealthy class, but the man with a personal income of $20,000 who is still permitted to retain $13,000 does not rend the heartstrings.

The present government at Ottawa has been pledged, not to impose conscription for overseas service. Quebec is certainly a matter of consideration in this pledge, and there was well founded apprehension that conscription in all its implications would destroy the unity of Canada. To national leaders falls the task of convincing dissenters that collapse of Britain means collapse of world-trade by which Canada has lived and been maintained. In every sense maximum aid is required for self-preservation of all Canadians.

Will it be possible to impose conscription, without the resignation of the government, and an election on that issue?

Our Right to Criticize

(Senator Wm. Buchanan)

HERE in Canada we do a very good job of criticizing each other. Let a public official err and his sins are promptly pointed out by opponents. Let a citizen do a good or bad deed and, if it touches our lives, it is duly recorded. If a merchant has a good product he proudly tells us. If he hasn't, his competitors will lose no time in getting their advantages spread round.

In this way, you and I get all the facts, all the warnings which equip us to protect ourselves. Knowing what is going on, enables us to protect our liberties, our pocketbook, our pride.

But who discovers and spreads the news? Newspapers do it. Only through the medium of newspapers can we keep up with what is going on, and it is reported with surprising accuracy.

Perhaps the accuracy is due to the fact that newspapers watch each other, but that is a safeguard, and another safeguard is the permanency of the printed word.

Be sure to remember however, that we speak of Canadian newspapers. If we had a dictator who did all the watching, you may be sure the sins of others and saintliness of himself and his satellites would make up the content of the papers of this country.

And so in a sinful world, about the only safeguard for liberty we have is the privilege of criticizing each other. The man who values his democratic right to punish bad government and penalize faltering business, will fight for his right to our kind of newspapers.

A famous authority summarizes the situation as follows: "Where news is suppressed, there is anarchy. Where news is controlled, there is fear and fury. Only where news is free, are human beings free."

How Credit Unions Came About

(From High River Times)

INASMUCH as High River district now boasts the first Credit Union in the province (perhaps in the Dominion) to be organized and run by women, a history of Credit Unions might be of interest.

So far as this continent is concerned it was a French Canadian, Alphonse Desjardins, who made the first move along such lines. He had been saddened by the hardship and gloom in great cities such as Montreal where poor borrowers paid usurious rates of interest for insignificant loans. For several years he studied the Credit movement as it operated in European countries, and then introduced his first Credit Union at Levis in

Britain in Greece

THE British are losing no "gamble" in Greece. The important questions about the Balkan campaign did not center about the possibility of winning or losing it.

One such question was whether Britain could afford to let the Balkans go without a fight. The answer to that was no.

Another was whether the spirit that steels the defenders of the British Isles could be unresponsive to another people fighting similarly against great odds. The answer to that was obvious.

In this campaign the British have lost some soldiers and some equipment; but from reports it appears that these losses are only a fraction of those suffered by the Nazis because of Allied resistance. Had the British not made good their pledges to Greece it is possible that German political pressures on Yugoslavia might have been more effective. By now Turkey might have surrendered to Nazi demands. British prestige throughout the Near East might have been undermined.

As it is, the Nazis will now have to extort future war supplies from a hostile Yugoslavia. They will have to police a nation that they hoped to incorporate as a willing adherent of the "new order." And Greece has become not only an embittered enemy of Italy but of Germany also. The Nazi Legions that might have moved through these territories unmolested to strike at British interests beyond with an undiminished enthusiasm are now battered and weakened. Doubtless they can be reinforced, but it is to be noted that German spokesmen are at the moment avoiding specific statements as to whether they will attempt to tackle the British in the Near East.

Aside from material factors, the war in Greece epitomizes the struggle of free peoples everywhere against the "wave of the past." Many a seemingly lost cause must be fought for, many a moral victory won, as it is being won in Greece by the outnumbered Allies.—Christian Science Monitor.

What New Taxes Mean

Greatly increased taxation in the federal field, must compel reduced taxation provincially.

The federal government has indicated this, in asking provincial governments to relinquish income and corporation tax fields during the war. In respect to the new 3 cent federal gas tax, new income and corporation taxes, there will be $4,000,000 new money go into the federal treasury from Alberta. There will be $1,392,000 collected by the 3 cent gas tax.

The National Defence tax as from July 1, has been increased from 2 to 5% and from 3 to 7%. This will bring pressure on many small income people.

The new graduated rates of income tax start at 15% on the first $1000 and increase by 5% on each additional $1000. This also will impose a tax on income of all classes, designed to realize an immense revenue.

Exemption for gifts to charitable organizations has been cut from 50 to 10%.

The National Defence tax minimum exemption has been raised from $600 to $660, and the exemption for dependents has been increased from $8 to $20.

Sugar tax has been raised from one to two cents a pound. These are forms of taxation which affect an increasingly great number of people. The increases likely to be most seriously felt are in income and national defence.

Luxuries and pleasures are bought with a price hereafter. There is new tax on beer, light wines and soft drinks; on moving picture tickets and on all forms of travel; on playing cards, cigarette lighters and cigarette tubes. The theatre tax is set at 20% and this is the first time the Dominion has entered this field of taxation. There will also be a 5% levy on race track bets made, another innovation. Tax on carbonic acid gas, used for soft drinks may boost the cost of the soft drink trade.

A new increase is made in excess profits tax, corporations to be taxed a minimum of 40%.

The instalment income tax payment will be extended and the due date is set at March 21.

Succession duties, similar to those of the province will be imposed.

Estimated Revenues

The estimated revenue for the fiscal year is $1,150,000,000. The total expenditures are $1,768,000,000.

The British deficit in payment of its balance with Canada may bring the budget deficit to $1,500,000,000.

Quebec in 1900.

The first instalment was a dime and the first collection amounted only to $26.40. There were many predictions that it would end up in collapse. But he continued his propaganda. He had support and loyalty. The dime contributions mounted up and up and today this Credit Union at Levis is a bank with assets of $1,500,000.

While this first experiment was meeting skepticism and scorn, the same idea was taking hold in big milling centres of New England States. Round 1908, the Credit Union Laws of New Hampshire and Rhode Island, made it possible for Unions to start in those states. It was in 1909 that Bell Telephone Co. employees started a Credit Union with a capital of $4,500. This grew in ten years to $1,500,000. Today in United States amongst mill people, and groups of working people of city and rural areas, there are 7000 Credit Unions in United States.

So far as Canada is concerned, the movement has grown similarly, having perhaps, the finest exemplification in Nova Scotia. Here it was the tiny sums squeezed regularly from the meagre earnings of fishermen, miners and such folk, that brought a measure of release and hope. It was in 1932 in the heart of depression that the first of 140 Credit Unions was established in Nova Scotia in 1932. These co-operative organizations have not only learned something of finance, but now have necessary capital for mutual or individual needs.

These societies are not often established amongst well-to-do people, who are well served by the commercial banks. They are for the masses who may lack ordinary comforts, but are willing to save in small amounts.

The experience of Credit Unions has been that even improvident people acquire habits of thrift, once they have acquired a stake in a community project. It is a safe repository for the little sums that vanish so easily and at the same time it is a shelter and a safeguard, providing members with a source of credit in time of need.

"I'm sorry—but I ain't divulgin' my destination!"

Is Quota System Good in Long Run?

(From Lethbridge Herald)

"Is the quota system in the marketing of wheat good for the farmer and the business man? If what our High River correspondent reports about the sale of farm implements is any indication, the farmer has more money this spring than is usual, and this is attributed to the instalment payments on wheat. Under the old system, wheat was largely marketed immediately after threshing and the farmer got his returns from his year's operations right away. When spring came, in very many cases, the money had been spent and the bank usually financed the spring operations. Now the farmer is on a monthly or quarterly pay basis, due to the quota system forcing him to market his wheat as space was available in the elevators. Most farmers we have talked to like the new method of marketing; some of them say it should be made permanent. It means they are getting salary or wages throughout the year, like those in the urban centres. If the factory employee or the clerk got his year's pay in one instalment, the tendency would be for free spending at the time the money was paid over, and there would come a time when he couldn't carry on without borrowing until the next annual pay day arrived. That has been the practice with the wheat farmer, and one of the consequences was that business was good for the merchant in the fall of the year and not so good again until the next crop was harvested. With the quota system payments come in throughout the year and the farmer has money to spend more regularly, with the result that merchants find business better balanced.

"In presenting this argument to an automobile dealer we drew from him the statement that he had sold a car a day during the month and that unquestionably there was more money in the farmers' hands this spring than was the case in other years. He agreed with the conclusion that the quota system was a factor."

Census A Resurvey Of Can. Business

The census enumerator who will be starting his rounds on June 2, will have a lot of questions to ask this year. These will cover every branch of economic life of Canada.

There are 30 questions re population; 29 questions re housing; 63 questions which are general. There are 64 questions on fruits and vegetables, and 25 on abandoned farms. Animals, fruits, etc., not on farms, cover 54 questions.

There will be special attention to housing information, in respect to repairs, etc. Types of heating, water facilities, telephones, vacuums, cars, radios, etc., will all go down on the record. There will also be check-up on rentals.

The census is intended to provide complete data on living standards, sources of income, etc.

New Courses at Banff School of Fine Arts

Its purpose to establish and preserve in Canada that wider culture and sense of appreciation of the finer things of life which must come with a new society after the war, the Banff School of Fine Arts has arranged a particularly interesting course of studies for the month of August. The school, which is now entering its ninth year, is sponsored by the Department of Extension of the University of Alberta, at Edmonton, in co-operation with the Provincial Institute of Technology and Art, Calgary.

The school is by no means confined to Alberta. Last year there were 175 students, from Vancouver in the west to New York in the east, from Peace River in the North to Buenos Aires in the south. The registration is expected to cover similar territory this year. The student body includes teachers, high school and college students and others interested in the arts purely for aesthetic reasons.

Courses regularly studied include the theatre, art, music, oral French and special classes for children covering the theatre, art and music. This year, owing to the generosity of the Carnegie Corporation special grant, new courses will be provided in applied art, weaving and design, pottery and modelling. Registration fees are extremely low,

The school building is a beautiful new structure which was completed a year ago at a cost of $50,000. It is of chalet design and has a theatre with a seating capacity for 700, a modern stage fitted with the finest lighting equipment, dressing rooms, music room, work rooms and other meeting rooms for small groups.

Students at the school also find time for recreation in Banff National Park, Canada's finest vacation land. The hot sulphur pools, the majesty of the mountains, the thrill of meeting wild animals on the trails, riding, hiking, boating, fishing—all these pleasures are open to the students when school is out.

Red Cross Has Successful Year

Administration Costs 3 1/3 Cts. on the Dollar; Total Received in 1940 was $8,176,583.

The Canadian Red Cross reports on receipts and expenditures for 1940. The financial statement revealed total administration costs were 3 1/3 cents on the dollar. Voluntary contributions received in 1940 amounted to $8,176,583, and money donated for specific purposes totalled $681,386. Expenditures during the year included $2,900,000 for materials made into supplies for overseas; $716,000 for the Red Cross hospital at Taplow, England; $215,000 to the British Red Cross; $117,000 to the British Navy League and merchant marine; $60,000 to the St. John Ambulance Association; $300,000 for ambulances; $100,000 to the Polish and Finnish relief funds; $75,000 for food to bombed civilians in Britain; and $197,000 for warehousing in Canada and England and for ocean freight.

W. J. Cairns, assistant national commissioner, said two more mobile surgical units will shortly be placed on Vancouver Island.

Prime Minister King has secured the promise of President Roosevelt to visit Canada in May. He will probably go to Ottawa round the middle of May when the house is in session.

Four Months Trainees Are Called For Active Service

Boys Now in Four Months' Training to Remain in Service in Canada

Young men of Canada who are now serving in the four months' training camp for 21-year-old classes, will not return to their homes on conclusion of the camp, but will be detailed for active service in Canada. This was the announcement made last week-end. Hitherto compulsory military service has been confined to a period of military training and then release for the civil job.

In the fourth-months' training period a new class enters each month, according to age developments. It is aimed to keep the four-month schools at capacity of 10,000.

Defence Minister Ralston states that the service required will mean Canada and its territorial waters, but not Newfoundland.

The total called up in the first and second drafts of the four-month plan will number 9,830.

These young men who will be detailed into the Canadian army, will be employed for coastal defence and internal military duties, thus relieving men of the active army who are available for overseas service.

Col. Ralston said the country had reached the stage when it is not so pressed for materials as for men and money. A new appeal will be issued for volunteers for overseas service, with a view to obtaining 22,000 men.

The number of men sought is based on discharges for various reasons from forces overseas. So far there had been no battle casualties, and a large reserve for re-enforcements has been built up. Some of these have gone to form new units.

No statement was made as to how many future classes would be retained in the army or "how many might be returned to civil life and replaced by others from later classes."

Under the one-month training plan started last October some 30,000 single men between 21 and 24 years have received training.

These, together with those now in training, or who may later be called for the four-month plan, under present regulations form part of the reserve army and are liable for duty and further training as may be directed.

In order to keep the army up to a maximum standard of fitness every man in the active forces in Canada is being given a new medical examination, the minister said.

Units which have spent long months on coastal defence work will shortly exchange places with battalions from the interior and so will get a rest and a change of scenery.

The minister said this exchange, contemplated for some time, would take place in the next few months. It will give the battalions from the coast a chance to advance further with their training and give those which relieve them a chance to apply their training.

Where practicable, the movement will be made partly by road, thus providing a test for transport, billeting

Can Earn Maximum Of $6 Acre Bonus

By Summerfallowing and Later Cropping to Rye or Grass in Fall

The maximum return from the Dominion's 1941 acreage bonus plan, is $6 an acre, E. L. Gray, western administrator of the farm assistance acts, explained to municipal district officials meeting in Calgary from all sections of Southern Alberta.

To secure the $6 the farmer must have acreage taken out of wheat summerfallowing by July 31. That brings in $4. Then, if he so desires, cropping any part of that summerfallow to rye or grasses in the fall will authorize the remaining $2—but it will not be payable until July of 1942.

If ex-wheat acreage is planted to coarse grains this spring a $2 bonus is in order while those who turn to grasses will be eligible for $2 this year and a like amount in 1942.

Other Provisions

Other provisions follow: Bonuses will be paid only on land taken out of wheat and summerfallow or planted to coarse grains or grass.

Applications for payment under the act must be filed by May 31. Better still, Mr. Gray emphasized, would be for farmers to fill out a form before seeding and use it as a plan for operations.

The application should be sent in as soon as possible to avoid the later rush but the sender retains the option of changing his plans later if he so desires. In many instances summerfallow seeding is expected to be completed and a decision then made what to do with the balance of acreage.

The Next 100 Days

(From Elmore Philpott in Vernon News)

We have already survived so many shocks in recent months that we are what sports writers call a bit "punch-drunk." The warning that the fate of half the world will be settled for a long while to come by what happens in the next 100 days is not easily faced. Yet it is sober truth.

In the next 100 days the gigantic mass production of the United States will be gathering momentum. At the end of that time it will be delivering war materials at such a rate as to roar aloud for all the world to hear that the death warrant of the dictators is sealed—if the decision is to rest with machine products.

In the next 100 days the verdict will be rendered on the Battle of the North Atlantic life-line—where we are now losing shipping about twice as fast as it can be replaced from all visible sources.

In the next 100 days the real Battle of the Balkans will be over—for there as nearly everywhere else Hitler must win quickly and completely or lose all hope of final victory.

In the next 100 days Hitler must either try to invade Britain herself—or admit even to his own troops that

In the next 100 days the British peoples will know whether they can win their first war aim, as defined by Winston Churchill: "the demonstration of our ability to survive."

In one phrase, the next 100 days will show whether Hitler has any hope of winning this war—which in the truest sense of the word is a race against time.

Will Soil Wear Out?

The answer is definitely yes, unless present methods of crop production are altered.

Four years ago, the Department of Soils of the University of Alberta made a study of the nitrogen and organic matter content of cultivated soils and neighbouring virgin sod at 32 widely separated points in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

In this study, the four major soil zones (black, dark brown, brown and gray) were all represented. It was found that, as a result of cultivation, the black soils had lost 18% of the original nitrogen and 21% of organic matter. The dark brown soils lost 22% of nitrogen and 26% of organic matter. The loss in brown soils amounted to 20% of the nitrogen and 27% of the organic matter. The gray soils, naturally less fertile than the others, were found to have lost 35% of the original nitrogen and 42% of the organic matter.

The above figures were obtained from analysis of the surface six inches of soil. In general, subsoil losses of nitrogen were slight, but organic matter losses considerable.

The authors state (Scientific Agriculture, Vol. 19) that "... it is clear that the straight grain and fallow system has not maintained the nitrogen ... or organic matter content of western Canada prairie soils."

Churchill's Radio Address Warns Battle of Atlantic

Sees Great Hope in U.S.
Patrolling Plans, Thus Releasing British Navy to Tasks Nearer Home

Prime Minister Churchill spared the public no important detail of the grim development of the last few weeks in his broadcast Sunday. But he did see great hope in the U.S. decision to patrol the waters for 1000 miles beyond the U.S. sea coast.

In his address, he defended the decision to aid Greece, characterizing British aid as a moral obligation, which the Empire was in honor bound to assume.

Acknowledging German victories in Yugoslavia, he said: "We must now expect the war in the Mediterranean on the sea, in the desert and in the air. It will be very fierce and widespread. War may spread to Spain and Morocco, to Turkey and Russia. The Germans may lay their hands on the granaries of the Ukraine or the oilwells of the Caucasus, but there is one thing certain, Hitler cannot find safety from avenging justice in the Middle East or the Far East. To win this war he must defeat this island or cut the lifeline between us and United States."

He found greatest encouragement in the decision of the United States to patrol the Atlantic, saying: "The American fleet and flying boats have been ordered to patrol the wide waters of the western hemisphere and to warn the peaceful shipping of all nations outside the combat zone of the presence of lurking U-boats or raiding cruisers belonging to the two aggressor nations."

This, he said, will permit Britain to concentrate on ocean routes nearer home.

Touching on Greece and North Africa, he disclosed that General Wavell at no time had more than 30,000 men, and with these he had defeated Italians in Libya. When Greece called for aid, it happened that the best divisions available were from New Zealand and Australia, and about half the troops sent to Greece were from these Dominions.

Speaking of Mussolini he called him "a whipped jackal trying to save his skin by frisking at the side of the German tiger."

He acknowledged that the Greek army had been beaten by Germany after having whipped the Italians.

"However," he added, "it remains to be seen whether it is the Germans who have made a mistake in trampling down the Balkan states and in making a river of blood and hate between themselves and the Greek and Yugoslav peoples."

"It remains also to be seen whether they have made a mistake in their attempts to invade Egypt with the ferocious and means of supply which they have got."

In conclusion he spoke of the valor of the bombed sections of Britain and the courage which flames high, saying "What a proof of fortitude and free institutions! What a test of the customs and societies so sturdily built."

S. H. Nixon Buried In New Brunswick

Funeral services for the late Stephen H. Nixon, who died in Calgary April 20 at the age of 72 years, were held at St. Andrew's United Church, Nanton, on April 22. Rev. C. S. Pinder conducted the service. A number of beautiful floral tributes covered the casket and Mrs. Pinder sang "The Old Rugged Cross" during the service. Pallbearers were A. A. Cummings, O. E. Smith and O. J. Gibson, Nanton; A. Andrews, Parkland; William Peters and Glen McAllister, Vulcan. The funeral was directed by the Snodgrass Funeral Home.

The remains were taken by Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Dixon of Trochu to Brighton, New Brunswick, where funeral services were held in the Baptist church on April 27 with Rev. E. A. Trites, a personal friend of many years, officiating. Interment was made in the family plot in the Lower Brighton burial park.

Born at Lower Brighton, N.B., in 1869, Stephen H. Nixon was married in 1881 to Miss Lillian Isabel Teddie of Lower Brighton, who predeceased him in 1937. Mr. Nixon was a supporter of the United Baptist Church and had been a deacon for about 30 years. In 1930 he was appointed relief officer for Carlton County and held that position until 1937. He retired from active farming in 1938 and since then had spent most of his time visiting his two sons and daughter in Alberta.

Surviving are two sons, Howard T. of Nanton, and Austin H. of Trochu; one daughter, Mrs. George Todd of Vulcan; four grandsons, Ralph, Lloyd Larry and Blaine Nixon of Nanton; and several nephews and nieces living in New Brunswick and the Eastern United States.

Jordan - Vaage, Jones - Williams

A double wedding of interest took place in Calgary on April 17th when Mabel K. Vaage, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. Vaage, and Mr. Bernard R. Jordan, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Jordan of Champion, and Phyllis H. Williams, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Williams of Kirkcaldy, and Mr. Ira J. Jones of Parkland were united in marriage.

Both brides were attired in similar black and white sports suits with which they wore accessories to match. Corsages of red roses completed their ensemble, while the grooms wore buttonieres of carnations.

Mr. Geeson of Okotoks performed the ceremony in the Church of Christ at Calgary, with each couple acting as attendants for the other.

After a short stay in Calgary, both couples motored back home. Mr. and Mrs. Jordan, teachers at the Harmony Junior and High schools will make their home at the teacherage. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will reside at Parkland where Mr. Jones operates a general store.

Conscript Farm Help If Need Be

Farm help in Ontario has become a serious problem, and the remedy proposed is to send high school boys out to work. Commenting on this, the Amherstburg Echo, says:

"Frankly, we fail to understand why the Dominion Government allows the condition to exist where partially skilled labor sometimes receives as much per hour as the men in our fighting forces receive in a day. Granted, by governmental regulations, industry is not supposed to be allowed to make huge profits on war orders but there seems to be little control as to the wages they can pay and thus the cost of producing war materials must be high. The farmers of Canada are contributing more than their share to the war effort through the low prices they receive for their products. These prices are not, in any way, in line with the prices that the farmers has to pay for manufactured products. Farmers
